Today's meal

breakfast:- Lunch:- dinner:-

Today's accommodation

Today's itinerary is to visit Juneau, the capital of Alaska. After the cruise arrives in the morning, you can choose to go to Mendenhall Glacier at your own expense. Mendenhall Glacier is one of the most beautiful and accessible glaciers in the world. This glacier was formed during the Little Ice Age 3,000 years ago. Its surface is about 12 miles long and 6 kilometers wide. It is a typical retreating glacier. About 200 years ago, Mendenhall Glacier moved from the present At about 250 miles away, the average annual retreat is about 25-30 feet; there are several hiking trails in this area, of varying lengths. You can choose an easy trail that only takes 20 minutes to complete, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of glaciers and waterfalls up close. While walking, you may also have the opportunity to see traces of wild bears, eagles, and reindeer. Juneau's cuisine is mainly about seafood, burgers, sandwiches and other simple foods. If you want to drink a cold drink, you must try the local favorites, Alaskan Amber and Smoked Porter brewed by the Alaska Brewing Company.

Today's accommodation

Sitka was founded by two Russians in 1799. Located in southeastern Alaska, on the west coast of Baranof Island in the Alexander Islands, the ruins of the ancient Russian village have now become a national historical park. Since it was the capital of Russian rule in Alaska from 1804 to 1864, there are many Russian relics preserved, such as the magnificent Russian-style St. Missy's Cathedral, ancient wooden houses in Siberia, and the intricately carved totem poles left by the Indians in the forests in the outskirts.

Hubbard Glacier Hubbard Glacier

Today's meal breakfast:- Lunch:- dinner:-

Today's accommodation

Alaska's Hubbard Glacier is also known as the "Running Glacier." This glacier in Alaska surges toward the Gulf of Alaska, forming a pristine area known as Disenchantment Bay. In fact, glacial activity created a natural dam bay adjacent to Russell Bay. However, huge water pressure is formed inside the area where the fjord turns into a lake, and the impact force is enough to break through the ice wall. Alaska's Hubbard Glacier is locally known as the "running glacier." As the largest glacier entering the sea in North America, Hubbard Glacier is so picturesque and its blue hue is so charming that even from a distance, you can't escape its temptation. As the cruise ship slowly approaches, its towering image emerges resolutely. Even if the cruise ship is 40 stories high, it will look extremely small in comparison. With the top of the snow-capped mountains as the backdrop, you can enjoy the glacier's calving process. A glacier equivalent to a 10-story building collapses, and you can imagine how much waves will surge! The area around Hubbard Glacier is rich in wildlife: whales, harbor seals and otters play in the water, brown bears, moose and black-tailed deer walk on the shore, and a variety of seabirds gracefully cross the sky.

In July 1900, the White Pass & Yukon Route from Whitehorse to Skagway was opened to traffic, providing gold prospectors with a safe passage through the mountains. We will take you to experience what it was like to live in the famous Alaska gold rush era. Walking on Skagway's wooden trails, you can still feel the nostalgia of a hundred years ago, and you won't miss the old train station, the Red Onion Bar, the Arctic Brothers Hall and the Gold Rush Museum decorated with 20,000 pieces of century-old driftwood.
